MYSTERIOUS LETTERS SHOWN BY FEENEY TO COAKLEY TRIAL JUDGE

Dinner with the wealthy "Mr. Blank" in a private dining room, many kinds of liquor, "everything going black," and then a wall panel sliding back revealing a bed chamber—such was the experience testified to today by the beautiful Mrs. Oda Pappathanos, who is suing Daniel H. Coakley for $500,000 in Superior Court.

Athol, July 29.—Word was received here that United States Senator Butler would be in Athol today, and would meet the citizens at the Pequot Club.

This estimate of the loot was made by Police Chief Charles R. Scott of Amesbury, to which town the money, comprising three big payrolls, was consigned on the Boston & Maine train.

Because none but the Boston bank, the Amesbury bank and the consignees were supposed to know when the money was in shipment, it is believed to have been an "inside job," worked with confederates in an automobile.

As local and State police of three States and postal inspectors from Boston hunted the hold robbers, Chief Postal Inspector Park D. Colvin announced the government will pay a reward of $2,000 for information leading to arrest and conviction of each of the two men who "pulled" the robbery—a total reward of $4,000 for a double capture and conviction.

The hunt, immediately following the daring crime, was centered on an automobile, declared by some to be a Studebaker sedan and by others a Studebaker touring car. The machine was seen speeding at sixty miles an hour near the holdup spot and in the direction of Newburyport.

MRS. PAPPATHANOS BREAKS DOWN AND WEEPS ON STAND DURING CROSS-EXAMINATION BY DANIEL H. COAKLEY

READY TO ASSIST
Law partner of John P. Feeney, counsel for Daniel H. Coakley, was in court prepared to "do his bit" if called on.

ON THE ALERT
Ever watchful and never missing a point was the counsel for the defendant in $500,000 suit.

GRILLS PLAINTIFF
Mrs. Pappathanos was put through a searching cross-examination by Coakley.

NOTING EVERY POINT
When she was not being subjected to Coakley's cross-examination, which caused her to weep, Mrs. Pappathanos followed the case closely.

QUESTIONER
Coakley subjected woman suing him to a rigid examination.

UNDER FIRE
Though shaken by emotion Mrs. Pappathanos held up well while on the stand.

most a bottle of sweet wine," said Mrs. Pappathanos. "I got awfully sick. Everything went black."

"I thought it was just an ordinary room, but I was surprised when the wall opened and there was a bed chamber. After a long time I found myself in bed and Mr. Blank was present."

Later, when she became sober, she said, she realized what she was doing, but did not care, as her husband had told her he did not want her, making her dependent.

She declared that long after the settlement with Mr. Blank, in which she admits getting $150,000 from Coakley and $7,000 from Mr. Blank, she had a conversation with the millionaire. "Telling this to a Maine attorney, she said she received the money," said the witness.

"Pooch, pooch $50,000! More and more than that."

Coakley was called to the witness stand by Judge Lummus, who took a prominent part in the day's proceedings. Coakley testified to making an agreement with Mrs. Pappathanos that whatever was obtained from Mr. Blank he should get half and she half, after expenses.

Temporary Halt

He did he considered, as the total amount received from Mr. Blank, the $200,000 that he himself admitted getting and the $7,000 that Mr. Blank gave to the woman direct. He made his settlement with Mrs. Pappathanos on the $227,000 basis.

The trial was halted temporarily when Attorney John P. Feeney, who is acting as counsel for Coakley, showed Judge Lummus two letters he received after court yesterday. A long conference ensued, all the attorneys and Coakley talking very earnestly with the judge, who pored over the mysterious missives, the contents of which were not revealed to the jury.

Following the soul-placerous cross-examination that Coakley subjected her to, Mrs. Pappathanos was asked, for questioning by her own attorney, William H. Garland, when he finished, Judge Lummus queried her and then Coakley took her again briefly.

Mrs. Pappathanos resumed the stand at 10:15 for re-direct examination by Attorney Garland.

"In the summer of 1923 you had a conversation with Coakley in regard to Mr. Pappathanos?" A—Yes.

Visite Pappathanos

Q—What did he say? A—He told me to go to Augusta, see Pappathanos and tell him all about it.

Q—And you went there? A—Yes.

Judge Lummus—The man Pappathanos, whom you describe, is a prominent lawyer in Maine, is he not? A—Yes.

Garland—And you came back? A—Yes.

Q—Did you tell him what you said to Pappathanos? A—Not that time.

Q—What was said when you saw Mr. Coakley again? A—Mr. Coakley told me the second case would come up in November.

Q—When did you see Pappathanos again? A—After I wrote to him in Augusta. I was tired of waiting for a settlement.

Q—Then you came back? A—Yes.

Q—What did you tell Mr. Coakley? A—I told him that Pappathanos told me he could not do anything about it.

Names Powell

Q—What did Coakley say? A—I cannot remember.

Attorney Garland then produced the letter introduced by Mr. Coakley yesterday, marked Exhibit 17A.

Q—I call your attention to the last of the letter. Read: "Oh, I am so damned tired listening to all your promises, listening to Pappathanos' lies." A—Yes.

Attorney Feeney—Who is that Powell? A—I don't know.

Feeney—Who sent her to him? A—Mr. Pappathanos and Mr. Coakley.

Attorney Garland then quoted another passage from the letter—"And Mr. Coakley, do you know that Mr.

Blank attorney told you he received over $50,000.

Attorney Feeney jumped to his feet, asking: "Who told her that?"

Witness answered: "Pappathanos and McElgin."

Garland—When did you first hear about that? A—In the last part of 1923.

Judge Lummus—When did you first receive any information that Mr. Coakley had received any more than he told you he had? A—In September, 1923.

Garland—When did you hear that? A—In December, 1923.

Judge Lummus—When did you hear that? A—In December, 1923.

More than $50,000.

Q—What did he say? A—I told him I heard Mr. Coakley received $50,000 and Mr. McElgin said "pooch, pooch, $100,000, more and more than that."

Attorney Garland stopped, and Attorney Lummus said he wished to question the witness.

Judge Lummus—At the time you saw Mr. Blank, where did you have dinner? A—At a hotel.

Judge—Well, was it in the dining room? A—It was in a hotel where you go to supper.

Judge—Did it look like a dining room where other people eat? A—No.

Judge—Was there a bed chamber?

there? A—No, it was just one room and I looked like a hall.

Judge—You were waited on by a regular waiter? A—Yes.

Judge—During dinner was liquor served? A—Yes.

Judge—At that time it was liquor, 1911. No answer from witness.

Judge—What did you have? A—Something red in coffee.

Judge—Anything else? A—And some red wine, sour.

Sick From Drink

Judge—How much of that did you have? A—One glass.

Judge—Did you have anything else? A—Yes, something brown.

Judge—It was very small? A—Yes.

Judge—And was that all? No, there was some sweet wine.

Judge—How much of that did you drink? A—Quite a lot. I think it was almost a bottle.

Judge—Did you feel drunk? A—I was awfully sick.

Judge—Did you feel better, then? A—No, everything went black.

Judge—What did you do then? A—I don't know. I was surprised when the door in the wall opened and there was a bed-chamber.

The witness then explained that she found out a long time after that she was in bed and that "Mr. Blank" was present.

Judge—Were you undressed? A—Partly.

Judge—Was anybody with you? A—Yes, Mr. Blank.

Judge—Was he undressed? A—Partly.

Blank Drank Most

Judge—Who drank the most? A—Mr. Blank drank more than I did.

Judge—What did you drink? A—It was a sweet drink. I do not know the name of it.

Judge—Where you went to that hotel with Mr. Blank didn't you expect some relations with him? A—No.

No, some time during the night you would be alone with him? A—No.

Judge—But you wouldn't be surprised if you found yourself alone with him. A—No.

Judge—And you wouldn't be surprised if he had relations with you? A—No.

Judge Lummus stressed the fact after Mrs. Pappathanos broke she was sober and must have realized her position. He commented on the fact that she realized her predicament, and from that point on she knew what she was doing and was

Coakley Trial Night Session Ordered

The court will sit tonight in the trial of Daniel H. Coakley, former attorney, for alleged misappropriation by his one-time client, Mrs. Oda Pappathanos, by order of Judge Lummus.

The judge takes this action to insure completion of taking testimony in the $500,000 suit this week. It is now expected that the jury will be charged Monday at the very latest.

her own master. Her explanation to that content was that she didn't care, that her husband had told her he didn't want her and she was willing obedient.

Mystery Letters

Attorney Feeney, Coakley's counsel, showed two mysterious letters, showing a long conference at the bench of Judge Lummus, Mr. Coakley and Attorney Feeney and Garland. Mr. Coakley took the witness stand for questioning. No announcement was made as to the contents of the mysterious letters.

Coakley said he was the name of the sister Lily in your previous testimony? A—Yes.

Q—Is that Mrs. Oleson? A—Oh, no.

Q—Where is Mrs. Oleson? A—I don't know.

Q—How do you know her address? A—I never go there. My brother, Ed, knows.

Mr. Coakley asked Attorney Garland if he had the address of Mrs. Oleson or the brother, who was sitting in the courtroom. The witness was excused.

Judge Lummus then called Mr. Coakley to the stand, explaining that he wished to make a statement.

The judge then asked Mr. Coakley: "You say there was an arrangement made by you and Mrs. Pappathanos some time prior to the time you received the money? A—Yes, about ten days prior."

Coakley on Stand

Judge—What was the agreement?

A—We agreed that whatever sum of money was obtained Mr. Pappathanos should get one half minus the expenses, and I should get one half.

Judge—The expenses to be deducted from the gross amount? A—Yes.

Attorney Garland then queried Mr. Coakley concerning an answer filed on September 11, and another answer in a set of interrogatories. Attorney Garland tried to show a conflict in the answers.

Mr. Coakley told him that the man he ought to see was Mr. Mahoney, who drew up the interrogatories, and he shouldn't try to find fault with anyone, but was simply seeking information.

Attorney Garland replied that he wasn't trying to find fault with anyone, but was simply seeking information.

Judge Lummus explained to the jury that they were not to infer that a party refrained from giving an answer in an interrogatory if the answer did not conform to the material in dispute.

Attorney Garland questioned Mr. Coakley concerning the division of the settlement made by Mr. Blank. Q—In deciding your fee you took into consideration the $7,000 which had been previously paid to Mrs. Pappathanos, didn't you. A—Yes.

Q—You said her $5,000 and her husband $2,000? A—Yes.

On $27,000 Basis

Q—You made the settlement on a $27,000 basis? A—Mr. Baker made the settlement on that basis.

Q—You consider your fee entitled to one half $27,000, A—I did. And Mr. Baker thought so too.

Q—I didn't ask you what Mr. Baker thought. I wish that part of your answer be stricken from the record.

Judge Lummus—That may be struck out.

Q—The expenses were trifling, weren't they? A—Yes.

Q—All you collected from Mr. Blank was $30,000, wasn't it? A—Yes, but we couldn't have collected that if it hadn't been for the other $7,000.

A review was declared and another conference was held at the bench between Mr. Coakley and Attorney Feeney and Garland.

At the close of the conference the bench Attorney Garland read the juror the divorce decree granted ad Mrs. Pappathanos March 17, 1918, for cruel and abusive treatment, from Constantine Pappathanos.

He called attention to the fact that a line had been run through the words, "Leave as given to my maiden name."

Judge Lummus explained to the jury that this was the record made by Arthur H. Beane of the Superior Court.

Pen Expert Called

Willard F. Turner, Boston handwriting expert, was then called by Attorney Garland as the last witness for the plaintiff.

Q—What is your profession? A—I am an expert in photography, handwriting, type-writing, ink and paper.

Q—How much experience have you had in handwriting? A—Twenty-two years. Q—What has been your experience in typewriting? A—Eighteen years.

Q—Have you testified in cases in court? A—Yes, in different parts of the country, in New England, and seven times in New York State since last November.

Q—Also an expert in photography? A—Yes.

Q—How many handwriting cases have you appeared for as expert? A—Just under 1,000.

Q—How many at typewriting cases? A—A great many cases.

Q—Have you also appeared as expert?

sert in photography? A—Yes.

Q—Have you any course of your examinations dealt with signatures? A—Yes.

Q—Will you tell what your system of determining the genuineness of signatures? A—I study the angles, the formation of letters with high and low power microscopes and with transmitting light.

Q—I assume that in making comparisons you have standards of handwriting in order to determine that in dispute? A—Yes.

Acts for U. S.

Q—Have you done this work for corporations and the government? A—Yes. For the Old Colony Trust, the New England Trust, Merchants' National Bank, Postoffice Department and for the district attorneys of Suffolk, Middlesex and Hampden counties.

Q—Do you devote all of your time to this profession? A—Yes.

Here Attorney Garland asked the clerk to give him the impounded papers.

Judge Lummus suggested that a paper, handed it a time.

Q—Noticing Mr. Turner place a magnifying glass on the shelf of the witness box, Judge Lummus inquired: "What is the power of that glass? A—It is a four-power glass."

Judge Lummus asked by a four power glass? A—One that magnifies four times the normal size.

Judge Lummus reached for the glass and himself looked through it at the signatures of the impounded papers.

POLICE ARMY IN THUG HUNT

Receiving first notification of the Salisbury-Annebury mail train robbery from the Boston Evening American, Chief Postoffice Inspector Park D. Colvin immediately dispatched two inspectors to the scene and made telephone wires vibrate with official messages broadcasting the alarm throughout New England.

He sent Inspectors Cronin and Guiney to the scene of the audacious highway. He flashed word to the heads of the State Police of Maine, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, and requested the Boston police to be on watch for the desperate robbers.

Chief Inspector Colvin worked at feverish haste until assured every end for miles around would speedily be under the surveillance of well-armed police.

Massachusetts State Police responded to the alarm reaching them from the Federal authorities and then hurried by rushing twenty men on motorcycles from the barracks at Framingham, North Road and Rowley.

Holdup Recalls Days of Jesse James

Since the days of Jesse and Frank James, Black Bart, Billy the Kid, the Daltons, Cole and Jim Younger, train holdups have gone out of fashion.

Still there were left desperate adventures of the underworld who dared the big game despite the threat of Federal pursuit that never gives up.

Among comparatively recent train holdups were:

May 23, 1912—Collector Frederick E. Lowell climbed on freight train at South Station. Thugs escaped with $125.

November 12, 1925—"Siegel mail robbery in history" just outside of Omaha, Neb. Three youths captured and claimed they got the $120,000 worth of registered mail without car.

September 1, 1916—Mail train held up near Stamford, Ct. Thugs escaped with some $1,000.

May 18, 1917—Queen & Crescent Railroad train held up and thugs got $200,000 in express car at Indianapolis, Ind.

July 25, 1923—At Fulton, Pa.

Famous Train Robbers of Past Secured Millions

Here are some of the famous train robbers whose operations in this country netted them millions of dollars, but generally resulted in the robbers either being killed or sent to prison.

The James-Younger gang, including Jesse and Frank James, with Cole Younger, like brothers, Bob and Jim Dalton, participated in hundreds of train and bank robberies in the West. In the "Big Tim" Dalton was the only one to die peacefully in bed.

The Dalton boys, famous West-ern outlaws, were shot down or died in prison after taking part in many robberies.

Al Jennings, famous train robber who served a Federal sentence, and later became a writer and lecturer, and eventually ran for public office in the West.

Jeff Harrison, head of a notorious band of train robbers, who looted a Baltimore & Ohio express car of $100,000 in West Virginia in 1915, spent twelve years in Atlanta.

Charles Boles, known as "Black Bart," who stole gold in dust and nuggets valued at $500,000 from a train in Nevada.

Merle Phillips, 17-year-old mail sorter, his 16-year-old brother, and several other boys, on November 12, Big "John Doe" Train Holdup Recalled by Salisbury Crime

The last previous big train holdup in New England took place about twenty years ago at Rockingham Junction, N. H. After a chase across the frozen marshes one of the thugs was captured and spent the rest of his life in Concord, N. H., State Prison.

An outlaw, known only as "John Doe," never revealed his name. He put up a battle with Sheriff Collins of Rockingham County and the pursuing posse. Several shots were fired by "Doe" at the posse, but none took effect, despite the fact he was using a long-barreled revolver.

He "pulled down" the gun after the failure of true eastern gun-fighters and a number of bullets sped perilously close to the pursuers.

MASKED, ARMED THUGS ROB TRAIN OF THREE BIG PAYROLLS

STAGE THRILLING HOLDUP! NEAR SALISBURY

Following are the estimates of the three payrolls stolen, all three firms being located in Amesbury:

- Biddle & Smart Auto Body Company, $50,000 to $65,000.
- Walker-Wells Body Company, $20,000.
- Merriman Hat Company, $20,000.

With guns in their hands the two robbers entered the speeding train just beyond the Salisbury station, backed Baggage-Master William M. Jordan of Beverly into a corner, and Harry Babcock of Newburyport, a brakeman, into another corner—then seized the mail sack containing the three payrolls.

LEAPED FROM TRAIN.
At a forty-five-mile-an-hour clip the train was bowling, but Baggage-Master Jordan, the instant the robbers' backs were turned in setting the sack down from the open door of the car, rolling over and over when he landed.

Just beyond the Cushing street crossing, the thug, who had held up Jordan, jumped from the speeding train, landed on the ground, and followed an instant later by his confederate.

Babcock, remaining in the car, notified Conductor Thomas, who Strife of heavy wrapping paper and cloth had been draped over the place to sound the two long and two short blasts for the Cushing street crossing, when the two men and their seats in the smoking compartment and snatched for flight.

As soon as they were out of sight of the smoking passengers they drew guns and before Jordan and Babcock had opportunity to know what was happening, each found a gun pointed at his stomach.

"Give up the sack," demanded the man holding Jordan with the gun, and without argument Jordan waved a hand toward the half dozen mail sacks in a dark corner.

With snoring precision the robber leaped to the corner, snatched out the sack containing the three payrolls—and followed Jordan who had taken the moment to leap.

3 FIRMS' CASH.
The three payrolls were estimated via the Foxway River National bank at Amesbury, to the Biddle & Smart-Automobile Body Co., the Walker-Wells Body Co., and the Merriman Hat Company of Amesbury.

When Chief Postal Inspector Park D. Colvin in Boston heard of the mail holdup, he assigned inspectors Brown, Guiney and Nelson to the case.

At postal headquarters it was learned that the regular mail train was taken off the Newburyport to Amesbury run and the mail sack has been carried in the baggage car.

LAVERS RISKED.
On a regular mail train and in a robber-proofed mail car, the mail and payrolls would have been locked up with an armed man.

The postmaster at Amesbury has objected strenuously all during the last few months to the carrying of the mail car, because he has had to risk his life that of a guard, and the safety of the money itself in making the transfer from baggage car to postoffice.

The train was composed of four cars, a combination baggage and mail car which held the pouch of money, a window, a passenger coach, and an express car. The crew of the train consisted of William E. Thomas, conductor; William A. Jordan, brakeman; and F. L. Hamilton, engineer.

The train was known as No. 929, which was made up at Newburyport, and was scheduled to arrive at Amesbury at 10:30 a. m. on July 29, 1926, but was held up at Newburyport by the mail robbery.

The train, which had stopped at the Salisbury station, where it was held up, was held up for about 15 minutes, and then continued on its way.

STATE POLICE GET BUSY

Under orders of Captain Thomas P. High, word of the robbery was flashed at once to all surrounding state police barracks, with corresponding orders to outgoing barracks that any attempt at a getaway across state lines might be intercepted.

Lieutenants Joseph P. Griffin and Lieutenant Harold H. Griffin of Troop A, state police, stationed at Framingham, were assigned. All other available men from the 10th state police barracks were ordered to the scene, where they were in conjunction with postoffice inspectors and local authorities.

The office of Captain High at the state house will be in constant communication with the state police barracks, in the hope that any clue as to identity of the robbers may be flashed throughout the state.

COP FACES TRIAL FOR TAKING $5 AUTO BRIBE
Worcester, July 28.—Patrolman John A. Kervick, attached to Station 1, was today summoned to court tomorrow on a charge of accepting a bribe. He also was summoned by Chief George H. Hill, according to the police. Kervick, stopped an autoist. There was some conversation concerning taking him to court, but Kervick is alleged to have said he would forestall it. He received $5 by Wednesday night.

The autoist reported the matter to Chief Hill, who gave him a marked $5 bill, and pointed two detectives to the scene where Kervick and the autoist were to meet. They claim they saw the money, but the police may be hadd him his cash.

Holdup Money Sent From Reserve Bank Is Insured
The money stolen by the Salisbury train robbers was contained from Boston by the Federal Reserve Bank, according to police, and William D. Harding, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, declared all money shipped from his bank to be insured.

All of the money shipped from the Federal Reserve Bank to the Salisbury train robbery was insured by the Federal Reserve Bank, and the money was insured by the Federal Reserve Bank, and the money was insured by the Federal Reserve Bank.

Wants J. S. to Pay Losses
Washington, July 28 (A.P.)—Thousands of American investors in German securities are bawling Congress to pass legislation at the next session to reimburse them for their losses.

Members of both Senate and House have received appeals from all parts of the country from citizens who have lost all they invested in German paper marks and bonds. They argued the American government is morally responsible as they contend they were encouraged by the government to invest in German securities, as the United States was attempting to placate Germany on a second financial basis.

Representative Hawley, Oregon, a Republican, of the Ways and Means Committee, to which most of the appeals have been referred, declared today the investors might have been claimants against Germany, but had no claim against taxpayers of the United States for their speculatively losses.

Description of 2 Daring Train Robbers
Here are descriptions of the two Salisbury mail train thugs, as given the police by Baggage-Master Jordan.

First Robber—
Thirty-five years old. Five feet six inches tall. Weight 145 pounds. Face of Slavie cast with scar on the side of one eye. Wore blue pencil stripe suit and gray cap.

Second Robber—
Twenty years old. Five feet six inches tall. Weight 130 pounds. Wore khaki pants and gray cap.

Offers $2,000 Reward for Capture of Robbers

CHIEF POSTOFFICE INSPECTOR PARK D. COLVIN announced a reward of $2,000 would be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the men the postoffice officials charge robbed the Boston & Maine train.

'PICTURE PHONE' TO SHOW PERSON YOU TALK TO
Paris, July 28 (A.P.)—The Mattheu claims that it will be possible within a few months for persons telephoning not only to hear but to see each other.

Edmond Bellet, inventor of the apparatus, and Professor Holsbeck of the Italian Institute, says the newspaper, after exhaustive experiments adopted the principle of telephoning as so to transmit an image instantaneously and reproduce it on a phosphorescent screen.

The inventor for the first time transmitted vision in B. Bellet's laboratory at La Malmouche in the presence of General Persio, chief of the army telegraphic service, and M. Paturel, professor of physics at the Sorbonne.

The images transmitted were small and the distance short, but according to La Mattheu, declare they are perfecting a machine that will shortly be able to transmit large images over greater distances.

Slush Secrecy May Bar Smith
Chicago, July 28.—The secrecy thrown around contributions to the Senate fund of Frank L. Smith, who won the Republican nomination in Illinois "million-dollar" senatorial primary, may bar him from the Senate if elected in November. It was broadly intimated today by Senator James A. Reed, D. of Mo., head of the slush fund committee, as the inquiry entered its fourth day.

Reed hinted the doors of the Senate might be closed to Smith, even though he wins a big majority, because of the action of his campaign manager in refusing to reveal the identity of men who poured $40,000 into his election fund.

This was the information refused by Allen P. Moore, Smith's manager, who was to reappear today to give the committee a final statement, after having conferred with Smith.

In political circles it was reported that Moore would reveal the earlier attitude and "tell all he knows." Reed, however, seemed but little interested in this final disclosure.

MRS. HALL HELD AS HUSBAND'S SLAYER

other maid was downstairs girl, and companion to Mrs. Hall. She gave no testimony of any value at the original investigation and as soon as she saw no future wanted by the prosecutor's office returned to her residence in South Boston. The reopening of the case revealed that she had recently come back to the country and is living in New Brunswick, N. J.

Reached by telephone today at the 1110 White House, Mrs. Gips, the Boston home, Governor Moore declared an intention of going through "the facts" with the prosecution of Mrs. Hall.

The accused woman spent practically the entire night in conference with attorney Russell E. Watson, New Brunswick, a woman companion and another man presumed to be a lawyer.

TAKEN TO JAIL ROOM
At 5:30 this morning, Mrs. Hall was taken by James Major, jail matron, to the room she will occupy on the second floor of the jail. Mrs. Hall remained there but a short time, returning to the conference room where she continued discussion of her case.

Mrs. Hall seemed to exhibit signs of emotion but with remarkable calmness acquired herself for the ordeal of cross-examination. It was reported she did not go to bed during the night, her only rest being a nap in a chair.

The woman spent two hours at state police headquarters before she was taken to the jail. She was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Walter H. Vaughan, South Norwell, but did not plead.

PEACE FLASHLIGHTS
The woman who accompanied Mrs. Hall to the prison was believed to be a relative or a neighbor.

As Mrs. Hall received the jail entrance flashlight beams and the woman was admonished by Attorney Watson to keep her head down. Later in the day, when Mrs. Hall had ended the discussion for the time being, breakfast was served to her in the conference room.

Closely guarded by a score or more of state troopers, Mrs. Hall was whisked from her luxurious home on Alton Avenue, New Brunswick, at midnight last night to the Somerset County jail here.

The investigation into the murders was reopened recently when Arthur H. Hall, husband of Louise Gleditch, a former maid in the Hall household, sued for annulment of his marriage.

Hall's statement two weeks ago that caused reopening of the investigation said when Louise Gleditch was the confidante of Dr. Hall, and referred to him as "my old husband." She said that in 1922 Mr. and Mrs. Hall were not on good terms and respondent carried messages between them, and that Dr. Hall used to entertain friends at the house known as Phillips farm, and that she herself had spent the summer with Dr. Hall alone.

ELOPEMENT TALK
She said that Sept. 14, 1922, Dr. Hall left his home, taking a large sum of money with him and telling her to say to Mrs. Hall he would be on the Phillips farm on the au-come for a couple of days, but she knew he intended to elope with Mrs. Mills at the time. Mrs. Hall was lying down in her room with a headache.

About 10 or 11 that night respondent, Mrs. Hall and one White Stevens, a lover of Mrs. Hall, known to be mentally deficient were driven in Dr. Hall's other automobile to Phillips farm by Peter Tandy, the chauffeur.

This was 35 hours before the bodies were found under a crab apple tree (the orchard).

$5000 TO KEEP QUIET
Respondent would not admit that in the party that went to the Phillips farm house was one Henry de la Bruyere Carpenter, but said she could testify Mr. Carpenter around her finger and that she got anything she wanted from him.

Respondent told your petitioner that she had gotten $5,000 for her part in the matter, and for keeping quiet about it.

She further said that certain county officials of Middlesex County were always taken care of for preventing anybody from breaking the case.

In the earlier investigation of the case it was shown that Mrs. Hall had had a quarrel with Miss Gleditch who was among the witnesses called before the Grand Jury.

Mrs. Hall's arrest came about as the direct result of an exhaustive investigation by the Daily Mirror, one of the publications of William Randolph Hearst, followed by an investigation by the authorities.

Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills were killed September 14, 1922. Two days later on a Sunday-Saturday morning—their bodies were found beneath an old crabapple tree on the Phillips farm on the authority of New Brunswick. Since that time hundreds of investigations, both official and private, have worked on the case. The dramatic arrest of Mrs. Hall comes as an emphatic official declaration that the new investigation has solved what criminologists have described as "the most baffling crime of the history."

DRAMATIC ARREST
The information which the Daily Mirror placed in the hands of the New Jersey authorities several weeks ago, caused Governor Harry Moore to detail Major Mark O. Kimberling and Captain Lamb to make an investigation.

The quiet investigations which climaxed with the dramatic arrest confirmed the evidence given to the authorities. And more, too. For the investigating officers, working quietly but energetically, came upon new evidence and startling new leads of their own. Much of the evidence discovered by the investigating authorities and by the Mirror must necessarily be withheld from publication in advance of grand jury action.

Find Evidence Pair Were Killed by Jealous Woman
Honesville, N. J., July 23 (A.P.)—The bodies of Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, victims of the apple orchard murder, were found September 16, 1922, in an abandoned orchard near New Brunswick. They had been shot with a 35-caliber automatic pistol, and their clothes neatly arranged as they lay side by side. A nearby vacant house was found to be completely furnished and showed signs of recent use. Love letters of the dead pair were found and published. Acquaintances declared Mr. Hall and Mrs. Mills contemplated eloping to Japan. Indications were they had been in close embrace when shot. Authorities investigated on the theory they had been killed by a jealous woman. This theory was strengthened upon exhuming of the bodies for more evidence when it was found Mrs.

Mills' throat had been cut, she had been shot three times in contrast with one shot for the clergyman, and her face had been scratched. It was recalled his eyes had been closed, while Mrs. Mills' had not. Attention was directed by the report of Clifford Hayes, nineteen, who was accused by Raymond Schneider of having shot them in mistake for Pearl Barker, sixteen, and her sister. A find was failed for the defense of Hayes, a war veteran, and a detective who got the Schneider statement was attacked by fifty citizens.

YEAR IN JAIL FOR WOUNDS WIFE;
ABDUCTOR KILLS SELF

Michael McCarthy, 21, of No. 13 Parker street, Everett, was found guilty of abducting Mary A. May, 16-year-old Everett high school girl from a dance hall and was sentenced to one year in jail. The case was tried in Chelsea court.

Miss May said McCarthy forced her to leave the hall at the point of a revolver, attacked her, took her to a rooming house in Chelsea, and then to a camp in Billerica, staying with her several nights. McCarthy admitted staying two nights, but denied any assault.

Providence, R. I., July 29.—Brooding over an illness that prevented him working, John Stone, 32, a war veteran, shot and probably fatally wounded his wife, Isabel, 28, and then killed himself, at their home, No. 23 Little street.

The couple were passionately fond of each other, according to the young woman's mother. They never quarreled. It is believed that Stone, bent on suicide, planned to take his wife with him.

Rum Plentiful in London—Line Up for Passports

London, July 29.—There is enough rum in the warehouses of the Port of London to inundate the whole British population with half an hour, Lord Ritchie revealed during a Session of the port by members of Parliament.

He added that there was sufficient rum to feed the population three months and enough tobacco to last a year.

The lack of population of the time required for the rum supply to be out the population was not revealed.

BLUEBERRY PIE TO BE SCARCE

Worcester, July 29.—There aren't going to be so many blueberry pies in Boston this year as in years past, for Worcester county's blueberry crop will be very poor.

The crop of the low bush berries is virtually nil, and the high bush species are poor, investigation shows. Weather conditions this Spring are responsible.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Boston Newlyweds on Honeymoon Trips in Many Parts of the World

BOSTON'S BRIDES AND BRIDEGROOMS, central figures in splendid wedding pageantry during the just past romantic season, are scattered to the Earth's four corners on honeymoon journeys varied and interesting.

HONOLULU FRIENDS of Philip Brown are deluging him and the new Mrs. Brown (Rachel Grant) with a festal round that has delayed homeward sailing again and again. Mr. Brown, making his third island visit, has hosts of friends who entertain and are entertained in return.

THEY HAVE AN APARTMENT at the Moana Hotel, an island show place. September will, probably, find them at the Jonathan Brown Hamilton estate, Red Top Farm, if the younger Browns depart from the island paradise, as they plan now, in mid-August.

BOSTON'S ELECT AWAITS with much interest the advent of Mrs. Richard Dudley Sears, Jr., erstwhile Frederica Lescor of Baltimore's haut monde. The Sears-Lescor nuptials shed brilliance on the Monumental City's bride list for March.

MR. AND MRS. SEARS on a round-the-world wedding journey, moving leisurely as fancy dictates, have reached Italy traveling eastward. Which means they'll be back on this side in the Autumn. At least, present plans put them down for a September visit at the North Shore, with the senior Mr. and Mrs. Sears.

YOUNG MR. AND MRS. HENRY CABOT LODGE, following a wedding celebration of utmost magnificence as befits such a union of distinguished families, are in Europe doing the favorite honeymoon itinerary.

JUST NOW THEY are in the provinces of Northern Italy. Paris and London, of course, will be visited, the former a second home of Mrs. Lodge who, as Miss Emily Sears, daughter of the Henry Seares, has received much of her schooling abroad.

THE FRANCIS T. P. PLIMPTON (Pauline Ames) back from six weeks abroad, are staying at the Park avenue (New York), apartment of the bridegroom's father, George A. Plimpton. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oakes Ames, of Boston and North Easton.

A TET NO VERY definite plans are made for setting up the Plimptons' new home, but very likely New York will eventually be the choice. The senior Plimptons have a summer place, called "Lewis Farm," in Walpole.

AN INTERESTING marriage establishment will be presided over by two young matrons newly entered upon the state of wedded bliss. They are Mrs. Walter K. Shaw, Jr. (Gleason Sargent), and Mrs. Henry Shaw Rogers (Grace Sargent).

MR. AND MRS. ROGERSON, just back from their honeymoon, spent at Yama Farm in upper New York's picturesque river region. The Shaw wedding was of an earlier date, celebrated quietly in the Spring.

MRS. CHAS. SUMNER BIRD, JR.

York's picturesque river region. The Shaw wedding was of an earlier date, celebrated quietly in the Spring.

BOTH AUGUST AND SEPTEMBER will be spent at Marblehead, where all the young people take an intense interest in Marblehead's prime sport, yachting. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers are to live with Sullivan A. Sargent, in the Sargent Tappan street home.

DOWN IN WARRENHAM on Cape Cod, Mr. and Mrs. John Howard Fay are willing away their honeymoon. The Fay wedding (his was Maudie Beale) was the very latest society celebration, the knot tied down at the Nahant church on July 17. The Fays, relatives of the bridegroom, are prominent Summer colonists in that pretty little place.

WOMAN RETIRES WITH MILLIONS

Chicago, July 29 (A.P.)—The La Salle Street to which she came as a stenographer in her teens, recorded today the transfer of $4,000,000 worth of securities, whose sale virtually wrote her today the business career of Mrs. Jacob Baer.

Mrs. Baer, a leader in Chicago society, recently ran for Congress on a wet platform. The four million in bonds is a minority share in the Liquid Carbonic Company, an enterprise which began 33 years ago with an investment of $100,000. Long before the discovery that Americans liked "fizz" drinks made the soda fountain a national institution.

Persons familiar with the company and the industry generally credit Mrs. Baer with chief responsibility for the strides the concern made in recent years, and which gave her, as Vice-president, a share in profits of nearly $10,000,000.

Worcester, July 29 (A.P.)—Twenty-five years of faithful service has received a substantial reward, it is known here today when Frank G. Hinman was notified that he is to receive $42,000.00 from the estate of Thomas Franklin Manville, head of the John-Manville Company of New York, according to the terms of the manufacturer's will.

Hinman has been employed by the company for twenty-five years, entering the Boston office in 1895. For four years he has been sales manager in the Worcester district. Four other employees who will receive shares in the Manville estate, according to the word received, are Clarence W. Childs of Woburn, Henry D. Childs of Dorchester, James Humphreys of Doham and Wilbur T. Roberts of Quincy. All will receive the same amount as Mr. Hinman.

Los Angeles Ready Lakehurst, N. J., July 29 (N.Y.)—The third flight of the dirigible Los Angeles will be staged as soon as weather conditions are favorable.

Just what you wanted—
your enthusiasm proves it

It makes you feel more exquisite

"YOU did make it!" cries Fifth Avenue, Park Avenue, all New York. "You produced the marvel we sighed for," fastidious women assure us—"a true savon de toilette without the preposterous cost of French soap."

Chicago is captivated! "It is so firm—so fine—so velvety—so luscious!" "Delicious—its lather, its dainty spring-flower fragrance."

"It makes my skin feel young—the way French soaps made me feel! And I can use it for toilet, for bath, for shampoo—without being a bit extravagant."

In Boston, Philadelphia and Cleveland they excitedly acclaim it! "No matter how much I order I don't keep up with the demand," says one big dealer. "Everywhere the same story from storekeepers. 'I order case after case, but even then it's not enough.'"

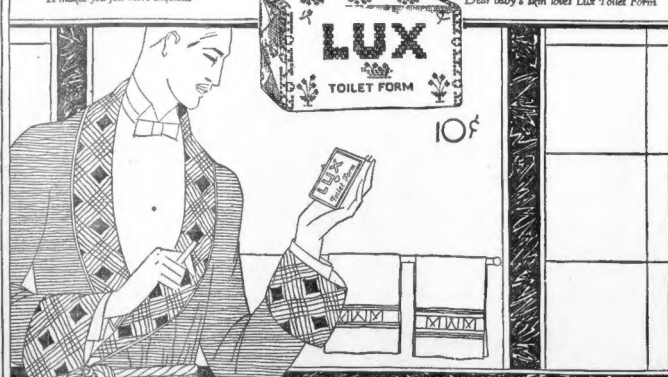

Lux Toilet Form is made by the very method France uses for her finest toilet soaps. But it is just 10c. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Massachusetts.

We Also Are Upside Down

This Turtle at Least Knows What's the Matter With Her

HERE, LYING FLAT ON HER BACK, UNABLE TO TURN OVER, IS A MONSTER SEA TURTLE WEIGHING 454 POUNDS.

The only interesting thing about Sister Turtle is that she can't turn over.

Nature planned for this monster of the ocean to live right side UP. Turn her upside down and she has no possible way of getting back onto her front shell and her four flippers.

Natives catching turtles that come up on the beach to lay their eggs simply drag them beyond the reach of high tide, put them on their backs as fast as they catch them, and know that the turtles must wait until they come to get them.

When they caught this big turtle they also scooped up and took away the 140 eggs that she had laid in a nest in the sand.

The poor female turtle's situation is complicated and made worse by the fact that her eyes are accustomed to looking upward; now the eyes see constantly the earth beneath her, no view of the sky above her poor under-shell.

So much for the turtle, victim of man's intelligence and her own rather inferior mechanical construction. Let us move on to the very rich gentlemen that eat the thick, nutritious green turtle soup, made from the body of this turtle's cousin.

Are not many of those enormously rich men nothing but human turtles, lying on their backs, SPIRITUALLY speaking, looking at everything the wrong way, and unable, because of their mental upside-down attitude, to do things that they ought to do and that would be worth while?

The man that thinks all his life about getting money, never thinking about using the money usefully, is nothing but a turtle on its back. It is impossible for him to roll over and do something useful; he is not built to roll over.

The man who thinks from birth to death: "How can I do something more for MYSELF," and never asks himself, "How can I do something with all my power and intelligence for OTHER people," is a turtle on its back, spiritually and mentally speaking, turned upside down.

At the last minute the human gold turtle may use some of his money in a spasmodic charitable action, but it's the same upside-down selfishness. He is thinking about himself, deciding at the last minute to be the Providence, if he can, to let him into Heaven, because something tells him that he ought to go in the other direction.

This poor female turtle at least is not to blame, for it is absolutely impossible for her to turn over. She ranks above our human brother the gold turtle, who might live right side up if he WOULD.

The French Franc

A Big Problem for Europe

What will France do? She might wipe out her currency, wipe out her interior and debt bonds, and proceed with the payment of her exterior debt, as Germany did. Or like Russia she might wipe out her debts, interior and external, destroy her currency utterly, and start anew with sound currency.

The French foreign debt which was forty-one billion gold francs, about $8,000,000,000, was reduced to 23,000,000,000 francs or about $4,500,000 by the terms of the British and American debt settlement.

The French interior debt, payable in paper francs, has been cut down ninety per cent. by the franc's collapse, so that the total debt of France inside and out is about $13,000,000,000, a small part of French wealth.

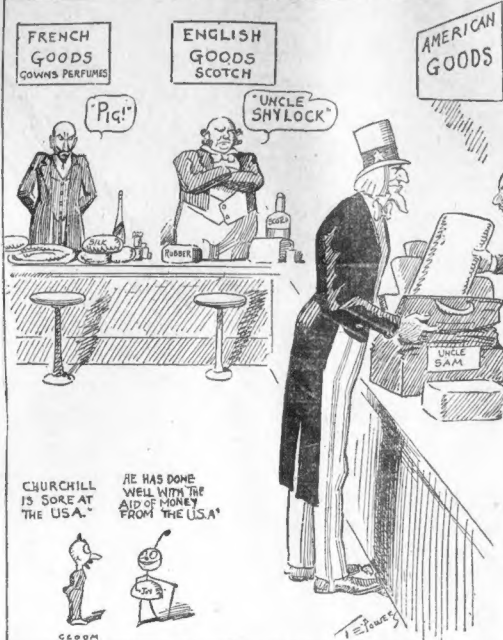

To wipe out the franc would be to wipe out the savings of millions of French people, and would cause serious trouble.

The French people are, according to London high finance, in serious danger with the franc dwindling away.

French political power is in the hands of numerous little groups in the Chamber of Deputies, and trying to form a stable government is like trying to build a house of marbles, without cement to hold them together.

Serious things might happen in Europe if the franc's life should suddenly disappear.

He'll Buy Where He Won't Be Insulted

TEST BY PROFIT NOT ALWAYS MERCILESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

THERE is something essentially moral about profits. For ages people who have made money have been held up to the contempt of the world. Making money has been supposed to require a low order of talent.

As a matter of fact the people who do the most good in the world are the money makers.

This has been demonstrated by the career of Mr. Henry Ford. He has taken the maxim of good business into every department of life and has shown that it results in the best and most permanent good.

Instead of doling money in charity, money that he has made any old way, honestly or dishonestly, he makes his money in such a way as to benefit others as well as himself in the making.

By this means he has redeemed the bankrupt Detroit, Toledo and Ironton Railroad and made it a profit-paying investment.

In the meanwhile all the employees of this road have been well paid and are satisfied.

He has found that paying men according to what men produce is not only good business, but it is good policy.

The principle of testing everything by profits has enabled him to get rid of a lot of old rubbish that has clung to our business dealings. He does not advance a man any more because of his seniority, but only because of his ability.

There are no grievance committees or other kinds of committees among his employees. Any man can go direct to headquarters and he knows it.

An increasing number of young high school graduates are going into his section gangs and they are no more afraid of manual labor because they find the laborer is treated right when his labor is tested fairly.

The old idea that a man can do only one kind of work has been disregarded. Whether he is a bricklayer or a machinist a man is supposed to do whatever he finds to do.

Altogether the plan of testing a business by its profits has not been found merciless or inhuman, but tends for the welfare of all concerned and eliminates a vast amount of bunk.

GIVING THE GOSSIPS A CHANCE AT YOUR FRIENDS

Some men are worse tattlers than little girls and boys. Often they tell funny stories about their friends, but those hearing them do not listen with the same viewpoint.

Some men take delight in recounting to their wives what other men do in the company of friends.

Often this is repeated by one woman to another till the embellishment and exaggeration reaches the wife of the man involved.

There was little harm in the matter as it happened, but by the time it reaches the man's wife it becomes a story which means disaster to the woman who wants to be proud of her husband.

The woman who expects perfection in her husband is doomed to disappointment, but the general run of men refuse to do anything but will cast reflection on their families or bring disgrace to themselves.

This is about all that can be expected of a man who is human—after all.

It may be a good joke to tell the foolishness of a certain man, but the story retold is likely to be distorted and hence create a serious situation.

It is a good sport and keep the affairs of the crowd within the crowd. Don't give the gossip a chance at your friends.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

BARBARA wants me to psycho-analyze her. Barbara says she's different—so very different from other people that she's worried about herself.

She doesn't react to life as other people do. She can't "take up" her mind to do a thing and then stick to it like most stupid folks can. One minute she wants to do a thing and the next minute she doesn't.

She has days when she walks on the clouds and days when she plunges in deepest darkness. But worst of all, there are restless times when she sits from one interest to another and just can't settle down to anything.

All her friends tell her that she's a high strung, sensitive nature. Barbara is quite willing to admit that this is so, but she's sure that nobody understands how she suffers. And isn't there some mysterious reason behind all this? Isn't there some sort of a complex that makes her this way? Maybe some little child that accounts for all this. Perhaps if she tells me about her dreams and reactions I'll be able to psycho-analyze her and her what's the matter?

So for six pages Barbara has lovingly told me her story. Now I'm going to answer. And when she's read my answer, I'll bet you dollars to doughnuts that she will be angry at me for life.

Have you a complex, Barbara? No, dearie, you haven't—not any more than a tulip.

Not are you different, peculiar or extraordinary? You're just a very human being with the natural handicaps of the species, and you're not different because that's the mark of the human race and you're not inferiorly civilized to control it.

What is the handicap? The handicaps are the monkey tribe. Lived like monkeys.

Now, I'm not saying that humans WERE monkeys in the long ago days. But it is very certain that they had some monkey-like branches of the human race still live in the jungles of the world.

Some of these branches are the cavemen we know. We speak where they found us and we know where they found us and we know where they found us and we know where they found us.

One moment they were the next we find them in a squaking speech, half hour we experienced delight, fear, hope, depression, love, hate, enthusiasm, jealousy. This was because we had "high strung, sensitive, artistic natures." It was because we were still kin to the monkeys, with undeveloped and undeveloped intellects and emotional systems.

Do you remember Rudyard Kipling?

He who first proposed to be an author, should first be a student. No pride in the monkey.

A people which takes no pride in the noble achievements of remote ancestors will never achieve any thing worthy to be remembered with pride by remote descendants.

Expression is of more consequence than shape; it will lift up nations or obscure them.

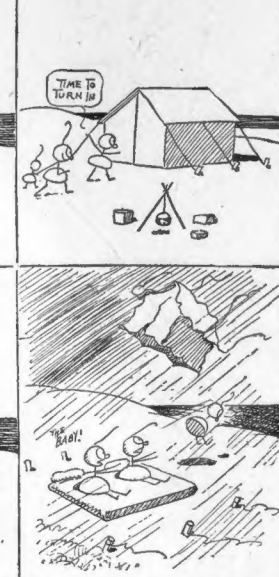

He who can at all times sacrifice pleasure to duty approaches sublimity.

SOLAR DISTURBANCE HAS WIDE EFFECT

By GARRETT P. SERVISS, Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

THE experience in weather that we have had during the past few days is a very good example of the effect of solar disturbances on the earth's atmosphere.

Justify the solar investigators of the Smithsonian Institution in their expectation of finding a key to the relation of changes in the sun with the climate and weather on the earth.

That the earth "makes its own weather" is true in the same sense that a baker makes his own bread; but the baker must be supplied with flour, and the earth must be supplied with radiant energy, else the sun cannot make bread nor the other weather.

All are agreed that the sun is the cause and source of all the daylight on earth, and likewise the cause and source of all but an infinitesimal part of the heat on the earth's surface and in its atmosphere.

It is also agreed that the sun is a variable star with respect to the supply of both light and heat.

These things being so, how is it possible to think that the change in the sun's output of radiant energy—changes accompanied by periodic and very conspicuous physical disturbances in the sun—can go on without noticeable effect upon the earth?

One might as well assert that an irregularly burning furnace would have no effect upon the temperature of a house.

Solar Disturbances At the present time the sun is in a state of increasing spottedness, approaching a maximum which will not be determined for several years.

Violent "storms" break out upon its surface, and these affect its radiation in two ways—first, by reflecting its intensity, and second, by producing temporarily obscure regions called "black spots" which reflect solar radiation that affect our health and comfort while not supporting the conventional theories of meteorological effects.

Besides, the absorptive power of the atmosphere varies with alterations of its condition, and all of these things play some part in the making of that most complicated product, the weather.

There are a great many things about the weather, and about that summation of weather called climate, which interest the ordinary citizen, but are not included in the reports. They are not included because they are not yet within the realm of verified science.

A far more complete analysis is needed of the obscure influences of solar radiation that affect our health and comfort while not supporting the conventional theories of meteorological effects.
